

Types of NFT

Explained

The complete guide to the different types of non-expendable tokens you need to know.

Digital Artwork

Art is one of the most popular forms of NFT out there. You can think about them as the digital version of physical paintings, drawings, or photographs.

The most famous digital work is Beeple's "Everydays: The First 5000 Days" which was sold for $69 million.

Music NFTs

Another form of NFT art is music. By selling music in the form of NFTs, artists can benefit from reaching their fans directly, avoiding concerns about music piracy and intermediaries.

Artists such as Deadmau5, Grimes, 3Lau, or Kings of Leon have jumped into this trend.

Video clips & GIFs

These NFTs can be the motion version of paintings and digital drawings. But they can also be loop videos or memorable sports moments, among many others.

In February 2021, the 22-seconds clip "LeBron James's Kobe Bryant tribute dunk" was sold for $387,600.

Mememes

NFT mememes are as funny as regular ones, with the difference that you can mint them, trade them or own them and prove ownership.

The most valuable mememe to date is the Doge mememe, which sold for a jaw-dropping $4 million.

Avatars / PFPs

Profile Pictures collections (PFPs) often have thousands of unique avatars that vary in rarity according to their traits.

The most famous are Bored Apes, CryptoPunks, Lazy Lions, and Hashmasks, among many others.

Video Game Items

Blockchain games allow players to buy, collect and trade NFTs in multiple forms, such as characters, creatures, virtual weapons, skins, and many other accessories.

Axies from Axie Infinity became one of the most popular game NFTs in 2021.

Trading Cards

These NFTs are the evolution of traditional collectable cards and have dual use: to play in the game and as a collectable.

God's Unchained and Sorare cards can be good examples of these NFTs.

Metaverse Land

Metaverses allow users to interact with a virtual ecosystem, where they can buy, sell, trade, and own virtual real estate.

Decentraland and The Sandbox are well-known metaverses where you can get NFT virtual land.

Virtual Fashion

Consider this type of NFT as your digital closet for your virtual life, where you can find anything to wear: sneakers, hoodies, sunglasses, even new skins for your avatar.

Adidas already dresses Bored Apes, and brands such as Balenciaga or Ralph Lauren have also created their fashion NFTs.

Domain Names

Traditional domains are the ones that end in ".com" or ".org". For its part, decentralized domain name services let you register a domain name and sell it on NFT marketplaces.

Budweiser paid almost $100,000 for the NFT domain "beer.eth"

Text-Based NFTs

From literary works to a single text, anything written can be minted as NFT. Think of it as a single copy of a newspaper or a letter from another century, for example.

Twitter CEO Jack Dorsey sold the first tweet ever made for $2.9 million.

Ticket & Membership NFTs

These NFTs can serve as entry tickets for events within a certain metaverse or as commemorative tickets for physical events, like concerts or sports matches.

2022 Super Bowl LVI attendees received a commemorative NFT virtual ticket.

Real-World Assets

Anything physical can be represented by an NFT. This tokenization of real-world assets introduces flexibility and record-keeping of ownership.

Cars, houses, lands, and other properties can be yours with just an NFT certificate.

What will be the next types of NFTs?

2021 was the year that NFTs became mainstream, but there is still a long way to go in the development of this technology, with many other types of NFTs still to come.
